This lesson: Creating a Story and Adding Pictures

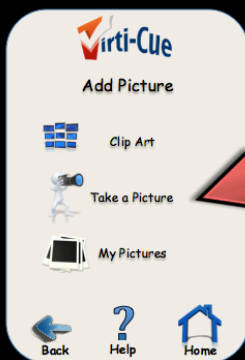

In this segment of Virti-Cue Cues, you will learn how to take pictures when creating a new story.

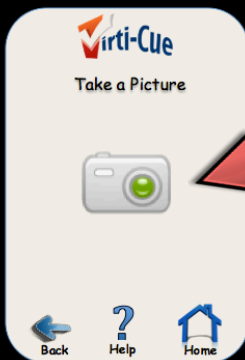

From the Home screen, select "New Story."

Next, type a name for your story - something easily identifiable that reflects the nature of the social skill you are targeting.

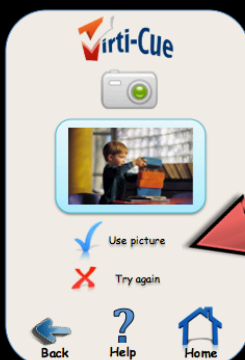

Once you have assigned a name, choose an icon that best represents the story theme.

Here you have three options. You may select an icon from your clip art, take a new picture instantly with your portable device, or draw upon existing photos stored on the hard drive of your device. Let's take a picture for our icon.

Find your subject, then click the camera icon.

Virti-Cue now prompts you to decide whether or not to keep this picture. Should your picture be unsatisfactory, click "try again" and repeat the process.

If you are satisfied with your picture icon, click "use picture", which will take you to the next screen.

Here your options are to save your story icon and add a new social story picture, save and exit, or cancel what you've done.

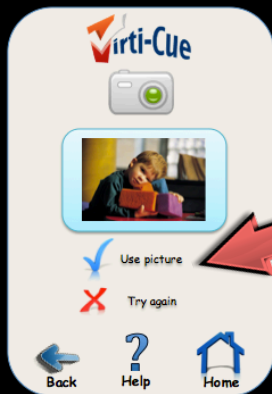

Let's save and add another social story picture.

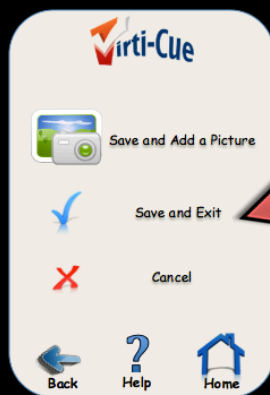

The process is the same as in adding your story icon - first select "take a picture", find your subject and select the camera icon,

if you are satisfied with your picture, click "use picture."

If this is the last picture you are going to add today, click "Save and exit."

You now have a story name, an icon to represent your story, and have added a new picture for your social story. At any time you may go back to edit and add to your social story.

Thank you for using Virti-Cue!
